WALTERS IN RAGE WHEN BRAIN POWER IS PUT IN DOUBT

With his happy-holiday complex still going strong in the foreground of a packed courtroom, James E. Walters, "Lone Wolf," heard himself described in strange terms today in Superior Court, where he is on trial.

His counsel severely with Walter's attorney, however, standing up for him and rebuking the prosecutor who had called it without a question regarding Walters' sanity, the "sublimity of isolation."

Mr. Walters was expected to take the stand today in the battle to prove his sanity or insanity, but while other witnesses testified of the exciting period, he took every opportunity to interrupt public remarks.

eguent dementia proeca, but an examination of six or seven hours, as mine was, was not enough.

THINKS HE IS INSANE.

"My study of this man, even if he had committed no crimes, would lead me, without hesitation, to commit him to an insane hospital, on the ground that he is insane."

Walters shouted: "I am not insane." Attorney Burke asked if a person suffering from dementia proeca would necessarily be sleepless. Dr. Evans replied:

"No. Sometimes they go into rages for hours and days. Walters: 'You told me if it was true—'

"Alimony Bureau: 'She is not!'"

"The 'Wolf' looked out a window and saw an attorney he saw a man behind a barred window in another wing of the building—the detention pen of the Superior Court. Pointing at him, Walters roared:

"Say there's a rump up there wants to hear this, too."

District Attorney O'Brien crossed the witness at great length, examining Walters' signs of insanity, asking if the defendant had any delusions.

Evans said: "He expressed the thought that the judge is keeping him in jail."

Walters interrupted with "He is!" Evans: "That if the judge made up his mind, he could let him out. This hearing of voices calling his name makes him feel as though somebody not friendly to him is reproaching him."

"He told me that on this account

he always walked on the left hand side of the street and against the building walls, so that if any rump approached him he could slip in somewhere and get a cup of coffee."

ADVICE FROM THE PRISONER.

The alienist said the delusions were very indefinite. The district attorney asked if Walters had any noticeable peculiar mannerisms.

Walters: "I let me go home and save your money. Save your money!"

Dr. Evans continuing, said the "Wolf" had a tendency to make meaningless motions with his hands, and added that, in jail, the "Wolf" had a habit of sitting silently and looking off into space and that Dr. Rader, one of the defense alienists, had to take him by the arm and shake him to leave him alone.

The witness said he could see no connection between Walters' delusions and his crimes. O'Brien then asked:

"Do you see in this man any inferiority of intellect?"

SHAKES HIS FINGER.

Walters turned in his case and shook his finger at the witness, and then shook his finger at the district attorney.

"Hey—my intellect is as good as yours," he shouted. Then he turned back toward the spectators and said, in a confidential tone:

"My intellect's pretty good."

Dr. Evans directed his mouthpiece to saying: "His judgment is very low. Walters told me he had pronounced headlines. He had feelings of his head were tightening up. These started last October. During some parts of the day he was better, but at twilight his head tightened up again, he said, and this lasted until he went to bed."

In the cage, Walters was constantly moving his lips as if talking to himself, all during the testimony. He seemed to be saying over and over:

"I want to go home. I want to go home. I want to go home."

Each time a loud word was used, repeated in attention and boomed up as if started.

There was frequent mention during the early part of the session of dementia proeca, psychopathic, hypomania, manic depressive hypomania, catatonic and psychotic.

Dr. Evans ended his testimony by saying that Walters is constitutionally psychopathic and inferior and that without any regard to his crimes the alienist considered the "Wolf" insane, but would make no definite diagnosis as to the type of insanity.

It would take a long examination to reach a decision such as that, he said, including conference between the examining physician, and even after that there would likely be differences of opinion.

DR. RADER IS CALLED.

Dr. Oscar J. Rader, of Brookline, formerly assistant at the St. Elizabeth's hospital, was called to the stand by Attorney Burke, connected with the Psychopathic Hospital in Boston from 1917 to 1923 and on appeal in nervous diseases, took the stand.

A recess was taken and when the "Wolf" was brought into the court room following the hiatus he complained that the court officer was twisting his sleeve a bit too tight.

Dr. Rader then testified that he

Cat's Scratching Saves Family From Death

Albany, N. Y., April 13.—A cat scratching at the door saved a family when fire spread through a three-story brick apartment house here. Firemen carried four children and a woman in safety from the upper floor when they became confused and were overcome in the smoke-filled hall. Damage was comparatively small.

While the churches of the town will have special services on Sunday, April 13, the services of the spring day will be literary exercises in the Lexington Town Hall Sunday evening at 8 o'clock, under the direction of the Lexington Historical Society.

DANCES TO BE GIVEN.

Lexington is preparing for an elaborate celebration of the anniversary, the program to extend throughout Sunday and Monday.

Vice President of the town will be a guest of the town, as well as a number of Governors of States and many other public dignitaries. Governor Alvan T. Fuller will speak from the famous Lexington battle ground after the parade on the afternoon of April 13.

While the churches of the town will have special services on Sunday, April 13, the services of the spring day will be literary exercises in the Lexington Town Hall Sunday evening at 8 o'clock, under the direction of the Lexington Historical Society.

MONTAGE TO SPEAK.

Edward C. Stone, chairman of the town's celebration committee, will preside, and Andrew Jackson Monahan, a Congressman from Virginia and former Governor of that State, will be the speaker. Congressman Montague is a member of the United States Commission appointed by President Coolidge to represent the nation at the exercises of April 13.

The United Masses Quartet will be accompanied by a local school children. One of their numbers to be "America the Beautiful."

Miss Katherine Lee Bates, a professor at Wellesley College, will read the original poem entitled "Glenn at Lexington." She also wrote the hymn, "America the Beautiful."

A battery of field artillery will be encamped on Betty Hill near the Old Battery, from where the alarm was given 150 years ago, and at 10 o'clock Monday morning, April 13, the battery will fire a salute and at the same hour church bells will ring.

The first event on Monday's program comes at 6 o'clock, when the early morning parade will be held over the Paul Revere route, from East Lexington to the battle ground in Lexington Centre.

The next event will be field sports on the Lexington Playgrounds, at 9 o'clock.

At noon, the reception to "Paul Revere" and "William Dawes," as they end their long ride from Boston to Lexington, will take place. The rider who will follow the route of his ancestor in 1775.

The big event of the day will be the parade in the afternoon on Massachusetts Avenue, starting at the Adams School in East Lexington at 2 o'clock. There will be more than 5,000 persons in line.

SCHOOL PUPILS ARE X-WORD WINNERS

Many New England school children are numbered among the winners in the Boston Evening American's Prize Crossword Puzzle tournament. One of these, Miss Anna Shanfield of Franklin street, Portland, Me., hit the bull's eye the first time she tried. She secured for a $1.00 prize for her solution to No. 34.

In telling of her experience Miss Shanfield wrote: "When I saw my name in the paper I was stunned for it is the first time I have ever won anything in my life. I sent the puzzle in as a joke in the first place. I was working it out in school (I go to high school) and when my friends gathered around me and told me to send it in I said I wouldn't win a prize anyway, but they insisted that I send it in and told me into the typewriting room to type it.

"They made sure I mailed it and said that only time would tell whether I would win or not. When they heard I won they said 'I told you so.'"

SHOTS HALTED BURGLAR SUSPECT

Shots fired by Patrolmen McAuley and Smith of the East Dedham street station, halted an alleged burglar, Walter S. Morrill, aged 28, as he tried to force his way into an apartment house at No. 121 West Newton street, South Dedham, early today.

The officers were patrolling the beat when they discovered Morrill who was endeavoring to force a rear window in the basement of the apartment.

Both officers drew their revolvers as they ran into the alleyway and when the alleged intruder fled they opened fire.

After a brief chase Morrill surrendered.

He was taken to the East Dedham street jail and was charged with breaking and entering in the night time, on which charge he was arraigned in the Roxbury court today.

MEDBURY SAYS

By John P. Medbury

THE automobile is a wonderful thing, but folks don't realize that there are still millions of people who love animals. Every day, two or three thousand men call up the race track to find out how the horses are getting along.

THESE men spend more money on the horse in one day than the society for the prevention of cruelty to animals spends in a year.

EVERY man has his favorite horse and calls him up three or four times during the afternoon.

BUT he against the rules of the race track for the horse to come to the phone.

SOME OPEN LETTERS

By Dave Sentner

DEAR KIDNEY KITT:

Would you call the man who wears a pair of squeaking shoes a loud dresser?

To a Restaurant Keeper:

Why does it always take you at least an hour to serve an order of three-minute soft-boiled eggs?

Dear Advertiser:

What about planting a few trees on billboards, so we motorists could see a bit of nature.

To a Barber:

The next time you give me a shave, would you mind letting me take gas before the operation?

Dear Congress:

Now that you've got your rain you can get right down to business and pass an important piece of legislation, a law to make people eat chicken with their fingers.

To a Playwright:

Why do they call it a happy end when the brides marry the hero?

Dear "Perplexed Youth":

You write and say that girls are so sophisticated these days that a chap doesn't know which girls he should kiss. We agree with you. Last Sunday we kissed a six-month-old girl girl baby and she slapped us in the face.

To a Railroad Engineer:

Is it true that the rules require that on locomotive must whistle only when the horses are in sight?

Dear Philadelphian:

We don't see why they shouldn't let you build all the sleeping cars in the country.

To a Correspondent:

You ask me the old one about what ten books you should take to an island. If you are going to Cuba take ten check-books.

WHY NIOBE WEPT

By Foxy Grandpa.

BOBBY and I walked through the museum and came to the wing devoted to statuary. There were all the beautiful marbles and as we passed one lovely statue, Bobby paused and regarded it thoughtfully.

"That lady looks very sad," said Bobby.

"Yes," I answered, "she is the weeping Niobe."

"What is she weeping for, Foxy Grandpa?" asked Bobby, looking up into my face.

"She was an unfortunate goddess," I replied.

"A Greek goddess?" queried Bobby.

"Yes," I answered.

"Will you please tell me the story, Foxy Grandpa?" requested the little boy.

"Come sit down on this bench, Bobby," I suggested, "and I'll try to remember."

We sat down on the bench and while the statue of Niobe looked on, Bobby walked by quietly, admiring and studying the fine work of art. I told Bobby the story of the poor goddess Niobe.

"Niobe was the daughter of Tantalus and the wife of Amphion, King of Thebes. I started, 'But better than this goddess and very rich, for she was a queen. But better than these gifts of fortune, Niobe was the mother of seven handsome sons and seven charming daughters."

"That's a big family," said Bobby.

"It had to be fun together," I said.

"Unhappily," I agreed. "But Niobe could not stand all of this property. It was too big, too big."

THE GENTLE SEX

By Mary Steele

It's easier for a girl to catch a man than a ball.

Talk is the only thing about a wife that's cheap.

Perhaps it was a husband who said, "A woman's hair is her crowning glory," so that he wouldn't have to let her see a new wig.

Her eyes are not lovely. Her hair is a sight. Her figure is a fright.

Yes. You can always tell a flatterer, but you can't tell just when that flatterer has just flattered.

It's hard for a lady to find any results of comfort to the value that she has just bought.

Household Hints.

How to get women to pay a bill. Advise that all of your bills are paid for women under thirty.

And the sweet girl graduate comes to worry more about the color of the ribbon her coat is wearing than she does about the essay itself.

Flowers of a Flirt.

They say that I am heartless. And that is very true. For I have been without a heart since I gave mine to you.

All the world's a stage and most women think they're born Cheapskates.

Clean Carpets and Rugs. You can't make a rug look like new by going over the entire surface with a brush. Remove all stains with a good carpet and rug cleaner.

Carbonyl. Carbonyl is a new and powerful disinfectant. It kills germs and will find Apollon.
